ABOUT THIS PUBLICATION

Library of Parliament Legislative Summaries summarize bills currently before Parliament and provide background about them in an objective and impartial manner. They are prepared by Parliamentary Information, Education and Research Services, which carries out research for and provides information and analysis to parliamentarians and Senate and House of Commons committees and parliamentary associations. Legislative Summaries are revised as needed to reflect amendments made to bills as they move through the legislative process.

For clarity of exposition, the legislative proposals set out in the bill described in this Legislative Summary are stated as if they had already been adopted or were in force. It is important to note, however, that bills may be amended during their consideration by the House of Commons and Senate, and have no force or effect unless and until they are passed by both houses of Parliament, receive Royal Assent, and come into force.

Any substantive changes in this Library of Parliament Legislative Summary that have been made since the preceding issue are indicated in bold print.

LEGISLATIVE SUMMARY OF BILL C-31: AN ACT RESPECTING COST OF LIVING RELIEF MEASURES RELATED TO DENTAL CARE AND RENTAL HOUSING

1 BACKGROUND

Bill C-31, An Act respecting cost of living relief measures related to dental care and rental housing (short title: Cost of Living Relief Act, No. 2 (Targeted Support for Households))¹ was introduced in the House of Commons on 20 September 2022 by the Honourable Jean-Yves Duclos, Minister of Health and given first reading the same day. The bill passed second reading on 19 October 2022 and was considered by the House of Commons Standing Committee on Health (HESA) on 24 October 2022. Report stage, third reading in the House of Commons, and first reading in the Senate were completed on 27 October 2022. A Charter Statement for the bill was tabled on 6 October 2022.²

Bill C-31 has three parts:

- Part 1 enacts the Dental Benefit Act, a dental care benefit providing parents with financial support to cover dental services for children under 12 years old. Parents must apply to receive the benefit. The benefit is available to parents with a household income below $90,000 and whose children do not have access to dental insurance. The benefit is an interim measure covering dental services received during the period of October 2022 to June 2024.
- Part 2 enacts the Rental Housing Benefit Act, which authorizes the establishment of a one-time rental housing benefit for eligible applicants who paid rent on their principal residence in 2022.
- Part 3 makes amendments to the *Income Tax Act*³ (ITA), the *Excise Tax Act*⁴ (ETA), and the Excise Act, 2001.⁵

This Legislative Summary provides a brief description of the main measures proposed in Bill C-31, summarizing the substance of each part.

1.1 PUBLIC DENTAL CARE IN CANADA

Oral health is an important component of children’s overall health. Poor oral health can lead to other negative health outcomes as well as increased use of the health care system. For example, tooth decay in children can not only cause pain and infection, but it can also affect children’s ability to speak, eat, sleep and learn properly. Tooth decay is the most common preventable childhood chronic disease in Canada and is one of the most common causes of day surgery in children under five years old in Canada.⁶

The *Canada Health Act*⁷ does not cover dental care services, apart from “surgical - dental procedures” carried out in hospitals. While there is some public sector funding for dental care in Canada, most dental expenses are either paid for by private dental insurance or paid for out of pocket by individual Canadians and their families.⁸ Cost is, therefore, a barrier to oral health in Canada, especially for low-income households. Statistics Canada data from 2018 showed that over one-third of Canadians do not have dental insurance and that more than one in five avoid going to the dentist because of the costs. Moreover, 2018 data in those living in low-income households were less likely to have visited a dental professional in the 12 previous months regardless of insurance status.⁹

Most of the public funding for dental services in Canada is administered at the provincial and territorial level. While all provinces and territories currently have some form of publicly funded dental care, there exist gaps in coverage. Public dental care programs are generally targeted to specific population groups (e.g., low-income families, persons receiving social assistance or those with craniofacial disorders). Further, many programs cover a limited number of dental services, and some require co-payments or have payment caps. A study conducted by Canada’s Drug and Health Technology Agency in 2019 identified over 80 different public oral health programs across federal, provincial and territorial jurisdictions.¹⁰ There is significant variation between these programs in terms of eligibility criteria, services covered and reimbursement rates.

Federal spending on public dental care is presently targeted towards certain population groups, including First Nations and Inuit, military personnel, veterans, refugees and inmates in federal prisons.

The inclusion of dental care in universal health care in Canada was considered from the earliest discussions on Medicare in Canada. The Report of the Royal Commission on Dominion-Provincial Relations published around 1940 included dental services as part of “state medical services.”¹¹ The Royal Commission on Health Services report from 1964 noted that dental services were part of the “the full range of essential services” in health, but also that implementation of a universal dental program would be challenging at that time given a shortage of professionals in the field. The report included a recommendation for the introduction of “[d]ental services, for children, expectant mothers, and public assistance recipients.”¹²

A national dental care plan was proposed in Budget 2022. The scope of the plan included the following investments:

Budget 2022 proposes to provide funding of $5.3 billion over five years, starting in 2022–23, and $1.7 billion ongoing, to Health Canada to provide dental care for Canadians. This will start with under 12-year-olds in 2022, and then expand to under 18-year-olds, seniors, and persons living with a disability in 2023, with full implementation by 2025. The program would be restricted to families with an income of less than $90,000 annually, with no co-pays for those under $70,000 annually in income.¹³

The Dental Benefit Act, proposed in Bill C-31, is an interim measure in advance of the development of a long-term national public dental care program in Canada.

1.2 INTRODUCTION OF A ONE-TIME RENTAL HOUSING BENEFIT

According to research by the Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation (CMHC), a quarter of Canadian households live in housing that is unaffordable – a situation that is “even more severe for renter households,” with about 40% of these households spending more than 30% of their income on housing as of 2016. CMHC notes that this rate of unaffordability “suggests that a small increase in rents could have a significant impact on [households’] ability to afford other non-housing necessities such as food, medicine, clothing and transportation, increasing the risk of homelessness.”¹⁴

The federal government administers a range of programs aimed at addressing housing affordability, notably through its National Housing Strategy. This includes supply-side initiatives to promote the creation of affordable housing units (e.g., the Rental Construction Financing Initiative), as well as direct supports to Canadians (e.g., the First-Time Home Buyer Incentive).¹⁵ It also includes the Canada Housing Benefit – an initiative co-developed and co-funded with the provincial and territorial governments.¹⁶ A total of $4 billion over eight years has been committed for this initiative, including $2 billion in cost-matching from the provinces. CMHC indicates that as of 30 June 2022, the provinces had committed $284.79 million, in support of 84,835 households.¹⁷

Noting that many still struggle with housing costs and “are in need of additional assistance,” Budget 2022 included “$475 million in 2022–23 to provide a one-time $500 payment to those facing housing affordability challenges.”¹⁸ A September 2022 news release from the Office of the Prime Minister highlighted the need for this payment in the context of inflation and the rising cost of living. The announcement included supplementary funding in addition to the amount proposed in Budget 2022, estimating a total expenditure of $1.2 billion. It was estimated that the payment would reach approximately 1.8 million renters.¹⁹

A backgrounder released by Finance Canada, also in September 2022, indicated that the payment would be launched by the end of the year “pending Parliamentary approval and Royal Assent of enabling legislation.”²⁰ Bill C-31 enacts the Rental Housing Benefit Act, which authorizes the aforementioned payment in the form of a rental housing benefit.

2 DESCRIPTION AND ANALYSIS

2.1 PART 1: DENTAL BENEFIT ACT

2.1.1 Preamble (Clause 2)

The preamble identifies the importance of dental care services for children and highlights the impact that the lack of access to dental care has on the health care system. It recognizes the need to provide interim dental benefits for children under 12 as the government works towards a long-term national dental care program.

2.1.2 Short Title of the Bill and Definitions (Sections 1 and 2)

Section 1 sets out the short title of the bill, namely, the Dental Benefit Act (the Act).

Section 2 establishes the definitions that apply to the Act. Many of the definitions outlined in this section are to be understood the same way they are defined in the ITA.

2.1.3 Payment of the Benefit and the Amount to be Paid (Sections 3 and 9)

Section 3 of the bill requires the Minister of Health (the minister) to pay a dental benefit to eligible persons that make an application.

Section 9 sets out the amount of the dental benefit. Applicants with an adjusted income of less than $70,000 for the base taxation year are eligible for a dental benefit of $650. Applicants with an adjusted income between $70,000 and $80,000 are eligible for $390. Finally, applicants with an adjusted income between $80,000 and $90,000 are eligible for $260.

In the case of shared custody, a parent is entitled to 50% of the amount of the benefit outlined in section 9.

2.1.4 Eligibility
(Section 4)

To be eligible for a dental benefit, applications must meet the following conditions:

- be entitled to apply for the benefit under section 5, 6 or 7;
- make an application in accordance with section 8;
- make less than $90,000 for the base taxation year;
- have actually received or will receive dental care services that are not otherwise covered by another program or plan established by the government of Canada or a provincial government; and
- the person not otherwise insured under a dental service plan.

This section also discusses how adjusted income is to be calculated in the case of part-time residents and in the case of bankruptcy. Additionally, this section provides the minister the power to deem an applicant ineligible in the case of misrepresentation or concealment of material fact.

2.1.5 Application for the Benefit
(Sections 5 to 8)

The bill creates two periods in which an eligible parent may apply for the dental benefit for each of their qualified dependants. Section 5 establishes the first period which begins on 1 December 2022 and ends 30 June 2023. To be eligible for the first period, dependants must be under the age of 12 years as of 1 December 2022 and have had or will receive dental services in Canada between 1 October 2022 and 30 June 2023. Applications can be made by the parent who receives a Canada child benefit on the application date.

Section 6 creates the second period which begins on 1 July 2023 and ends on 30 June 2024. To be eligible for this period, qualified dependants must receive dental care services in Canada during the period and be under 12 years of age on 1 July 2023. Applications can be made by the parent who receives a Canada child benefit on the application date.

Section 8 establishes the form, manner and content of an application for the dental benefit. Applications must include the applicant's name and address, the attestation (section 10), details of the provider of dental services, and employment information about the applicant and their cohabitating spouse or common-law partner, if applicable. This section also gives the minister the ability to request additional information if required.

2.1.6 Attestation
(Section 10)

Section 10 sets out the details of the attestation applicants must include in their application. Applicants must attest that:

- their eligible dependant received or intends to receive dental care services in Canada during the relevant period; and
- that the eligible dependant is not otherwise insured under a dental services plan.

2.1.7 Administration of the Dental Benefit
(Sections 11 to 22)

There are various administrative details outlined in the bill. These include:

- The dental benefit payments will be paid out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund (section 14).
- The minister is authorized to collect and use applicants' Social Insurance Number (section 15).
- The minister may require additional information in respect of dental care services including a receipt for payment (section 16).
- The minister may reconsider an application within 24 months (section 18).
- Persons subject to a decision of the minister under the Act may make a request for review within 90 days of being notified of the decision (section 19).
- The minister may require repayment in the case overpayment or erroneous payment (section 20).
- Action to recover money under the Act must be taken within six years of payment, or acknowledgement under subsection 5 (section 21).
- Overpayment and erroneous payments are not subject to interest (section 22).

2.1.8 Violations, Offences and Penalties
(Sections 23 to 29)

Section 23 sets out violations for this Act. Persons who knowingly make a false or misleading representation on an application or apply for the benefit when they know they are not eligible, are understood to have committed a violation under this Act. The minister may impose a penalty of no more than 50% of the dental benefit that was or would have been paid to a maximum of $5,000. The purpose of the penalty is to promote compliance with the Act, not to punish those who have committed a violation. Penalties for violations may not be imposed if more than three years have passed since the violation took place (section 24).

Section 27 establishes the offences under this Act. Persons who knowingly use false identify information with the intent to steal another person’s dental benefit or who knowingly makes three or more representations that are false or misleading resulting or would have resulted in payment of at least $5,000 are understood to have committed an offence under this Act. The punishment for an offence under this Act is a summary conviction:

- to a fine that is no greater than $5,000 plus no more than double the amount of dental benefit that was or would have been paid; and/or
- imprisonment of no more than two years less a day.

Proceedings in respect of an offence of this Act must be brought within five years from the day that the minister becomes aware of the offence (section 29).

2.1.9 Sunset Provision (Section 30)

Section 30 automatically sunsets payments under this Act on the fifth anniversary of it coming into force.

2.2 PART 2: ENACTMENT OF THE RENTAL HOUSING BENEFIT ACT

Clause 3 of Bill C-31 enacts the Rental Housing Benefit Act, which authorizes the establishment of a one-time $500 rental housing benefit for eligible applicants who paid rent on their principal residence in 2022. The Rental Housing Benefit Act includes 28 new sections. This summary refers to the provisions of the Rental Housing Benefit Act by their section numbers for ease of reference.

2.2.1 Payment of the Benefit

Section 3 requires the Minister to pay a one-time rental housing benefit of $500 to all who apply for it and are eligible to receive it.

2.2.1.1 Definitions (Section 2)

Section 2 establishes a set of definitions for the Act. These include:

- defining “rent” to mean a payment made under a lease, licence or similar arrangement to occupy a principal residence, including any part of that payment that is intended to pay for utilities or property taxes. Rent does not include utility payments or property taxes paid to someone who is not part of the lease, business expenses under the ITA, payments for board or other services, capital leases, or payments to related persons where the payment doesn’t count as income under section 251 of the ITA;

- defining “cohabiting spouse or common-law partner” to mean the same as in section 122.6 of the ITA, and therefore include all spouses and common-law partners who are not living separately and apart for a period of at least 90 days due to a breakdown of their marriage or partnership; and
- defining “Minister” to be the Minister responsible for the CMHC, as defined in the Canada Housing and Mortgage Corporation Act. At the time of writing, this refers to the Minister of Housing and Diversity and Inclusion.²¹

2.2.1.2 Eligibility
(Section 4)

Section 4 specifies that living individuals are eligible for a rental housing benefit if, on the later of 1 December 2022 or the date the Act comes into force, they meet all of the following criteria:

- they are at least 15 years of age (section 4(1)(a));
- they are residents of Canada in 2022 for the purposes of the Income Tax Act (ITA), and their principal residence is in Canada (section 4(1)(c));
- they have filed (along with their cohabiting spouse or common-law partner, if they have one) a tax return for 2021, or file their tax return within 120 days (section 4(1)(d));
- they have a 2021 a maximum adjusted income²² of $20,000; or a maximum of $35,000 if they:
 - have a cohabiting spouse or common-law partner,
 - have a child under the age of 18 as a dependant, or
 - support a fully dependant family member who lives with them (section 4(1)(e));
- they paid rent (or their cohabiting spouse or common-law partner paid rent) in 2022 for time spent living in their principal residence in 2022 (section 4(1)(f)); and
- this rent is 30% or more of their 2021 adjusted income (section 4(1)(g)).

PRELIMINARY VERSION

UNEDITED

For the purposes of the 30% rent-to-income threshold in section 4(1)(g), and the meaning of income in section 4(1)(e), rent and income are to be modified in the following circumstances:

- As originally drafted, the bill stipulated that if a rent payment included an unspecified amount for board or other services, only 75% of the payment would be taken into account as rent (section 4(2)). HESA amended the bill to increase the proportion of the payment considered as rent to 90%. This will allow more individuals whose rent includes an unspecified amount for board and other services to qualify for the benefit.²³
- If, on the later of 1 December 2022 or the day the bill comes into force, an applicant and their cohabiting spouse or common-law partner were living separately and apart for a period of at least 90 days due to a breakdown of their relationship, then rent would have been calculated differently; specifically, the applicant's rent would have been the 50% of the rent paid by both cohabiting spouses or common-law partners in 2022 while they lived together, plus the total rent paid by the applicant after they began living separately and apart (section 4(3) with definitions from section 2(2)). This section of the bill was amended by HESA to indicate that, for an applicant in these circumstances, rent will refer to the total amount of rent paid by the applicant in 2022. This amendment was intended to reflect the fact that couples may not split rent evenly, and to avoid penalizing individuals who were paying more than 50% of the rent.²⁴
- If an applicant and their cohabiting spouse or common-law partner lived in two different principal residences at any point in 2022, then rent can include rent payments made by either of them on both of these principal residences while they were each other's cohabiting spouse or common-law partner (section 4(4)).
- If a person was non-resident in Canada for the purposes of the ITA at any time in 2021, the person's income for the year is deemed to be the amount that would have been their income for the year had they been resident in Canada throughout the whole year (section 4(5)).
- If a person goes bankrupt in 2021, their income for that year is to include their income for the taxation year that begins on 1 January 2021 (section 4(6)).

Additionally, if cohabiting spouses or common-law partners are both eligible for the benefit, only one of them may receive it (section 4(7)).

2.2.1.3 Applications and Attestation
(Sections 5 and 6)

Section 5 requires applicants to submit applications in the format specified by the Minister responsible for the CMHC. Applicants must submit their application no more than 120 days after 1 December 2022 or the day the legislation comes into force, whichever is later. Note that the bill, as introduced in the House of Commons, included an application period of 90 days rather than 120 days; however, this was amended by HESA. This change provides additional time for individuals to become aware of and apply for the benefit, and reflects that a 90-day application period may be challenging for groups such as seniors and individuals facing language barriers.²⁵

Section 6 requires applicants to submit, as part of the application, information about the amount of rent paid in 2022 for their principal residence, the address of this principal residence, and the name and contact information of the landlord or other recipient of the rent. Applicants must also attest to the accuracy of the information in their application.

2.2.2 General Provisions

Sections 7 to 28 of the Rental Housing Benefit Act provide additional details regarding the administration of the rental housing benefit.

2.2.2.1 Roles and Delegation
(Sections 7 to 10)

Sections 7(a) and 7(b) specify that in the administration of the Rental Housing Benefit Act, the CMHC holds the rights, liabilities, and powers – and performs all the duties and functions – of the Minister responsible for the Corporation.

Section 8 stipulates that the Minister of National Revenue – as well as any authorized official of the Canada Revenue Agency – may support the Minister in the administration and enforcement of the Rental Housing Benefit Act.

Section 9 of the Rental Housing Benefit Act enables the Minister to enter into agreements or arrangements with any department, board or agency of the Government of Canada for assistance in carrying out the Rental Housing Benefit Act.

Section 10 allows the Minister to delegate the authority to exercise the Minister's powers or perform the Minister's duties or functions under the Rental Housing Benefit Act to any person or body, or member of a class of persons or bodies.

2.2.2.2 Use of Information
(Sections 11, 13 and 14)

Subject to agreement by the Minister and the Minister of Revenue, the Minister of Revenue may use information obtained under the Rental Housing Benefit Act (or prepared from information obtained under the Rental Housing Benefit Act) for the administration and enforcement of the ITA (section 11(1) of the Rental Housing Benefit Act). This information may also be provided to other persons or bodies considered advisable by the Minister, provided it is for the administration and enforcement of the ITA, and adheres to conditions agreed upon by the Minister and the Minister of National Revenue (section 11(2) of the Rental Housing Benefit Act).

Section 13 of the Rental Housing Benefit Act authorizes the Minister to collect and use the social insurance numbers of rental housing benefit applicants for the administration and enforcement of the Rental Housing Benefit Act.

Under section 14 of the Rental Housing Benefit Act, the Minister may require that a person provide information or documents within a specified timeline for the purposes of verifying compliance or preventing non-compliance with the Rental Housing Benefit Act (section 14(1)). If a person fails to comply, the Minister may deem that person ineligible for the rental housing benefit (section 14(2)).

2.2.2.3 Consolidated Revenue Fund
(Section 12)

Section 12(1) specifies that all funds paid for the purposes of the Rental Housing Benefit Act are to be paid to CMHC from the Consolidated Revenue Fund. CMHC may choose to pay some or all of these funds to the Receiver General, to be credited to a special account in the Consolidated Revenue Fund in CMHC's name (section 12(2)). If funds are credited to the special account, the Minister of National Revenue may make payments out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund on behalf of CMHC for the purposes of the Rental Housing Benefit Act, and charge these payments to the special account (section 12(3)(a)). Further, any money owing to His Majesty under the Rental Housing Benefit Act must be deposited into the Consolidated Revenue Fund and credited to the special account (section 12(3)(b)). Note that the creation of special accounts – officially called “specified purpose accounts” – is a common practice allowing the federal government to keep track of revenues and expenditures for specified purposes.²⁶

2.2.2.4 Certain Restricted Actions
(Section 15)

Section 15 of the Rental Housing Benefit Act specifies that the rental housing benefit is not subject to bankruptcy or insolvency laws; cannot be assigned, charged, attached or given as security; cannot be retained by way of deduction, set-off or compensation under any Act of Parliament other than the Rental Housing Benefit Act; and is not garnishable moneys for the purposes of the Family Orders and Agreements Enforcement Assistance Act (meaning that it cannot be garnished for the payment of child or spousal support).

2.2.2.5 Erroneous Payment or Overpayment and Recovery of Debt
(Sections 16 and 18 to 20)

Under section 16(1) of the Rental Housing Benefit Act, the Minister may reconsider a rental housing benefit application for up to 24 months after the 120-day application period following the later of 1 December 2022 or the date the Act comes into force. If the Minister believes that a false or misleading statement or representation has been made connection with the application, the Minister has 72 months instead of 24 months for reconsideration (section 16(5)). If the person received money to which they were not entitled (i.e., a payment that should not have been made or an overpayment), this must be repaid, and if the person did not receive money to which they were entitled, then the amount is payable to the person [sections 16(3) and 16(4)]. In either case, the Minister must calculate the amount and notify the person (section 16(2)).

In the case of erroneous payment or overpayment of a rental housing benefit, the person must repay the amount as soon as is feasible (section 18(1)). The amount constitutes a debt to His Majesty and is payable to, and recoverable by, the Minister, as of the day the Minister determined the amount of the erroneous payment or overpayment (section 18(2)).

Section 19(2) indicates that money owed under the Rental Housing Benefit Act may be recovered at any time through deduction from, set-off against, or compensation against any sum of money payable to the person by His Majesty, including a rental housing benefit. However, the amount may not be deducted from Canada Child Benefit payments.²⁷

The recovery of debts is subject to a six-year limitation or prescription period, starting when the debt is due (section 19(1)). The prescription period begins to run anew if an individual acknowledges the debt in the manner set out in section 19(5) (sections 19(3) and 19(4)). In addition, the limitation or prescription period is suspended during any time when it is prohibited to undertake actions or proceedings to recover money under the Rental Housing Benefit Act (section 19(6)). The six-year limit and associated conditions do not apply in cases of action or proceedings related to the execution, renewal or enforcement of a judgment (section 19(7)).

Section 20 of the Rental Housing Benefit Act specifies that no interest is payable on debt that is the result of erroneous payment or overpayment.

2.2.2.6 Request for Review
(Section 17)

Under section 17(1) of the Rental Housing Benefit Act, a person may request a review of the Minister's decision within 90 days (or any further time as allowed by the Minister) of the date they are notified of the decision. If a request for review is made, then the Minister must review the decision and either confirm, vary or rescind it (section 17(2)).

2.2.2.7 Violations
(Section 21)

Section 21 provides information on violations under the Rental Housing Benefit Act.²⁸ It specifies that a person commits a violation if they:

- knowingly make a false or misleading representation in relation to their application for a rental housing benefit (section 21(1)(a)); or
- make an application for a rental housing benefit and receive the benefit knowing they are not eligible to receive it (section 21(1)(b)).

The Minister may impose a penalty of up to 50% of the benefit that was paid or would have been received as a result of the violation (sections 21(2) and 21(3)). Section 24 of the Rental Housing Benefit Act indicates that a penalty constitutes a debt due to His Majesty and is payable to and recoverable by the Minister as of the date the penalty is imposed.

However, sections 21(4) and 22 of the Rental Housing Benefit Act specify that the penalty should not be imposed if the person mistakenly believed that a representation was true or that they were eligible to receive the benefit, or if more than three years have passed since the violation took place. Section 23 of the Rental Housing Benefit Act states that the Minister may rescind or reduce the penalty if new facts are presented, or if the Minister believes the penalty was imposed without knowledge of, or based on a mistake about, a certain fact.

2.2.2.8 Offences
(Sections 25 to 27)

Section 25 provides information about offences under the Rental Housing Benefit Act. A person commits an offence if they:

- knowingly use false identity information or another person's identity information to obtain a rental housing benefit (section 25(1)(a));²⁹
- counsel another person to apply for a rental housing benefit with the intent to steal a substantial part or all of it (section 25(1)(b)).

Those who are found guilty of the above offences are liable on summary conviction³⁰ to one or both of the following punishments: a fine of up to $5,000, plus up to double the amount of the benefit that was or would have been received as a result of committing the offence; and/or imprisonment for up to two years less a day (section 25(2)).

For enforcement related to offences, sections 26(1) and 26(2) of the Rental Housing Benefit Act allow the Minister to designate any person or class of persons as an investigator, and to authorize the Commissioner of Revenue to designate as an investigator any employee or class of employees at the Canada Revenue Agency. Under section 27, proceedings for an offence under the Rental Housing Benefit Act must be instituted within five years of the day the Minister becomes aware of the subject matter of the prosecution (section 27).

2.2.2.9 Sunset Provision
(Section 28)

Section 28(1) of the Rental Housing Benefit Act states that payments may no longer be made out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund for the purposes of the rental housing benefit as of five years after the Rental Housing Benefit Act comes into force.

Section 28(2) specifies that, on the day after the fifth anniversary of the Rental Housing Benefit Act's coming into force, any funds that were paid to CMHC from the Consolidated Revenue Fund for the purposes of the benefit must be paid back into the Consolidated Revenue Fund and credited to the Receiver General (section 28(2)(a)); and further, that if CMHC has set up a special account within the Consolidated Revenue Fund for the purposes of the benefit, the account must be closed and remaining funds must stay in the Consolidated Revenue Fund and be credited to the Receiver General (section 28(2)(b)).

2.3 PART 3: AMENDMENTS

Part 3 makes amendments to the *ITA*³¹, the *ETA*³², and the Excise Act, 2001.³³

Clause 4 amends section 81(1) of the ITA, which lists amounts that are excluded in the computation of income of a taxpayer for a taxation year, by adding amounts received under the Dental Benefit Act. As a result, these amounts are not subject to tax under the ITA and “[will] not reduce other federal income-tested benefits such as the Canada Workers Benefit, the Canada Child Benefit, and the Goods and Services Tax Credit.”³⁴

Clauses 5, 6 and 7 amend section 241(4)(d) of the ITA, section 295(5)(d) of the ETA and section 211(6)(e) of the Excise Act, 2001, respectively. These sections set out circumstances in which a government official may disclose taxpayer or confidential information and to whom such information may be disclosed. The amendments allow taxpayer or confidential information to be provided to officials of the Canada Revenue Agency solely for the purposes of the administration or enforcement of the Dental Benefit Act or the Rental Housing Benefit Act, and to officials of the Department of Health, as well as certain persons working for the CMHC solely for the formulation or evaluation of policy of either Act.
