ABOUT THIS PUBLICATION

Library of Parliament legislative summaries summarize bills currently before Parliament and provide background information about them in an objective and impartial manner. They are prepared by Research and Education, which carries out research for and provides information and analysis to parliamentarians, Senate and House of Commons committees and parliamentary associations. Legislative summaries are revised as needed to reflect amendments made to bills as they move through the legislative process.

For clarity of exposition, the legislative proposals set out in the bill described in this legislative summary are stated as if they had already been adopted or were in force. It is important to note, however, that bills may be amended during their consideration by the Senate and House of Commons and have no force or effect unless and until they are passed by both houses of Parliament, receive Royal Assent and come into force.

Any substantive changes to this Library of Parliament legislative summary that have been made since the preceding issue are indicated in bold print.

LEGISLATIVE SUMMARY OF BILL C-62:
AN ACT TO AMEND AN ACT
TO AMEND THE CRIMINAL CODE
(MEDICAL ASSISTANCE IN DYING), NO. 2

1 BACKGROUND

On 1 February 2024, the Honourable Mark Holland, Minister of Health, introduced Bill C-62, An Act to amend An Act to amend the Criminal Code (medical assistance in dying), No. 2, in the House of Commons.<sup>1</sup>

Bill C-62 pushes back the date of eligibility for medical assistance in dying (MAID) based solely on mental illness from 17 March 2024 to 17 March 2027. The bill also requires a joint committee of the House of Commons and the Senate to undertake a comprehensive review relating to eligibility on this basis, within two years of the date of Royal Assent.

The issue of mental illness has been contemplated from the outset of Canada's deliberations on MAID. In February 2016, the Special Joint Committee on Physician-Assisted Dying (PDAM) tabled a report providing recommendations for a federal framework on MAID, which included the following:

Recommendation 3

That individuals not be excluded from eligibility for medical assistance in dying based on the fact that they have a psychiatric condition.<sup>2</sup>

The first federal bill permitting MAID, Bill C-14, An Act to amend the Criminal Code and to make related amendments to other Acts (medical assistance in dying), received Royal Assent on 17 June 2016.<sup>3</sup> The bill did not expressly exclude individuals with a psychiatric condition or a mental illness. However, it did limit eligibility for MAID to those whose “natural death has become reasonably foreseeable.”<sup>4</sup> When Bill C-14 was introduced, Quebec had already passed its own assisted dying law, the Act respecting end-of-life care, which similarly required that patients be “at the end of life” in order to be eligible for MAID.<sup>5</sup>

Bill C-14 required an independent review of three circumstances under which MAID was, and is still, restricted, including MAID where mental illness is the sole underlying medical condition.<sup>6</sup> These reviews were undertaken by the Council of Canadian Academies (CCA), which released its reports on 12 December 2018.<sup>7</sup>

The CCA’s Expert Panel Working Group on MAID Where a Mental Disorder is the Sole Underlying Medical Condition used the term “mental disorder” rather than “mental illness” to be consistent “with current clinical and legal practice.”<sup>8</sup> They acknowledged that mental disorder in the context of MAID is a “contentious subject.”<sup>9</sup> Members of the working group did not agree on some fundamental issues, and for some areas, did not reach “consensus on the interpretation and/or significance of the evidence, or about what constitutes relevant evidence.”<sup>10</sup> Key issues that were considered included the clinical challenges of determining whether an individual’s request for MAID is a symptom of their mental disorder; whether it is possible to determine if an individual’s case is “irremediable”; and whether permitting MAID where mental disorder is the sole underlying medical condition (MAID MD-SUMC) is compatible with suicide prevention efforts. The working group reviewed a number of potential safeguards for MAID MD-SUMC but disagreed about whether the risks of the practice could be mitigated by such safeguards.

On 11 September 2019, in the case of Truchon c. Procureur général du Canada, the Superior Court of Quebec found the federal eligibility criterion requiring a reasonably foreseeable natural death, and the Quebec criterion requiring a person to be at the “end of life” unconstitutional.<sup>11</sup> Parliament responded to the ruling in Truchon with Bill C-7, An Act to amend the Criminal Code (medical assistance in dying),<sup>12</sup> which received Royal Assent on 17 March 2021.<sup>13</sup> The bill created an additional pathway to MAID for individuals whose natural death is not reasonably foreseeable.

Bill C-7 also prohibited MAID MD-SUMC. Prior to Bill C-7, individuals with mental disorders were not barred from obtaining MAID, but they were limited by the reasonably foreseeable natural death criterion. Bill C-7’s removal of this criterion could have allowed more individuals suffering solely from a mental disorder to obtain MAID. However, the bill included a new provision stating that mental illness does not count as an “illness, disease or disability” for the purposes of MAID eligibility (section 241.2(2.1) of the Code). The Senate amended the bill to include a sunset clause that would allow MAID MD-SUMC 18 months after the date of Royal Assent. This was extended to two years by the House of Commons.<sup>14</sup> MAID MD-SUMC was thus due to become available as of 17 March 2023.

Prior to its passage, the House of Commons amended Bill C-7 to require the Minister of Justice and the Minister of Health to set up an independent expert review “respecting recommended protocols, guidance and safeguards to apply to requests for medical assistance in dying by persons who have a mental illness.”<sup>15</sup> The Expert Panel on MAiD and Mental Illness was formed in August 2021 to undertake this review. The expert panel tabled its final report, which included 19 recommendations, in Parliament on 13 May 2022.<sup>16</sup> The report concluded that the existing eligibility criteria and safeguards for MAID are adequate for cases based solely on mental disorder.<sup>17</sup>

UNEDITED

In 2021, the Special Joint Committee on Medical Assistance in Dying (AMAD) began a statutory review of the federal MAID regime, including issues relating to mental illness, as required by Bill C-7. In June 2022, AMAD released an interim report focused on MAID MD-SUMC,<sup>18</sup> to which the government provided a response in October 2022.<sup>19</sup> While the interim report did not contain recommendations, it concluded:

We must have standards of practice, clear guidelines, adequate training for practitioners, comprehensive patient assessments and meaningful oversight in place for the case of MAID MD-SUMC.<sup>20</sup>

AMAD's final report for the statutory review, tabled in February 2023, also emphasized the importance of standards of practice being in place prior to MAID MD-SUMC being permitted:

While the committee supports MAID MD-SUMC, it is concerned that there has not been sufficient time to develop the standards of practice referred to by the Expert Panel [on MAID and Mental Illness]. Witnesses were clear that these standards are key to ensuring a thoughtful, consistent approach to MAID MD-SUMC.<sup>21</sup>

The government provided its response to AMAD's final report in June 2023.<sup>22</sup>

In response to concerns that the health care system would not be prepared to safely and consistently provide MAID MD-SUMC by the 17 March 2023 deadline provided by Bill C-7, the federal Minister of Justice introduced Bill C-39, An Act to amend An Act to amend the Criminal Code (medical assistance in dying).<sup>23</sup> The bill delayed the availability of MAID MD-SUMC for an additional year, to 17 March 2024.<sup>24</sup> It was introduced in the House of Commons on 2 February 2023, as AMAD was nearing the end of its mandate, and was passed in that chamber on 15 February 2023, the same day AMAD presented its final report to the Senate and House of Commons. The bill was passed in the Senate and received Royal Assent on 9 March 2023. According to the government, the passage of the bill provided more time for the "dissemination and uptake of key resources" such as practice standards and training, and for consideration of AMAD's final report.<sup>25</sup>

On 7 June 2023, the National Assembly of Quebec passed Bill 11, An Act to amend the Act respecting end-of-life care and other legislative provisions.<sup>26</sup> The bill provides that a person cannot request MAID for a mental disorder other than a neurocognitive disorder (sections 26(4) and 29.1(2)(d)(ii) of Quebec's Act respecting end-of-life care).

AMAD's final report for the statutory review included the following recommendation:

Recommendation 13

That, five months prior to the coming into force of eligibility for MAID where a mental disorder is the sole underlying medical condition, a Special Joint Committee on Medical Assistance in Dying be re-established by the House of Commons and the Senate in order to verify the degree of preparedness attained for a safe and adequate application of MAID (in MD-SUMC situations). Following this assessment, the Special Joint Committee will make its final recommendation to the House of Commons and the Senate.<sup>27</sup>

AMAD was re-established in October 2023 pursuant to this recommendation. On 29 January 2024, the committee tabled a third report recommending that the implementation of MAID MD-SUMC be further delayed.<sup>28</sup> The report was not unanimous; four out of five senators on the committee issued dissenting opinions, while members from the Conservative Party of Canada and the Bloc Québécois issued supplementary opinions. On the day the report was tabled, the Minister of Health and the Minister of Justice publicly expressed their agreement with the committee's recommendation, leading to the introduction of Bill C-62.<sup>29</sup>

Whether and when individuals should be eligible for MAID MD-SUMC has been the subject of much controversy in Canada. The key points of debate over Canada's readiness for MAID MD-SUMC are described in AMAD's third report.<sup>30</sup> The Charter Statement for Bill C-62 sets out considerations that support the constitutionality of both prohibiting and permitting MAID MD-SUMC.<sup>31</sup>

2 DESCRIPTION AND ANALYSIS

Bill C-62 contains three clauses. The first changes the date of eligibility for MAID MD-SUMC, the second sets out the requirements for a parliamentary review, and the third sets out coordinating amendments.

The first clause extends the temporary exclusion of eligibility for MAID MD-SUMC under the Criminal Code from 17 March 2024 to 17 March 2027. It does so by amending section 6 of An Act to amend the Criminal Code (medical assistance in dying) (formerly Bill C-7), which establishes the coming into force date of the sunset clause set out in subsection 1(2.1) of that Act. The sunset clause repeals the provision of the Criminal Code which states that “a mental illness is not considered to be an illness, disease or disability” for the purposes of MAID eligibility.<sup>32</sup>

UNEDITED

The three-year delay proposed by Bill C-62 will have a significant impact on the lives of individuals who wish to receive MAID on the basis of mental disorder and who meet all the other eligibility criteria including experiencing intolerable suffering. Both AMAD and the Government of Canada have recognized that the suffering caused by mental illness can be as severe as that caused by physical illness.<sup>33</sup>

The second clause requires that a joint committee of the House of Commons and the Senate undertake “a comprehensive review relating to the eligibility of persons whose sole underlying medical condition is a mental illness to receive medical assistance in dying” (clause 2(1)). The review must begin within two years after the date on which the bill receives Royal Assent (clause 2(2)). Clause 2 leaves it open to the joint committee to prepare a report, which may recommend changes to the Criminal Code provisions on MAID. However, neither a report nor recommendations are required. If the committee does choose to prepare a report, it must be tabled in both the House of Commons and the Senate (clause 2(3)). The committee will expire on the day its report is tabled, or on 17 March 2027, if a report has not yet been tabled by that date (clause 2(4)).

The third clause provides an alternative legislative pathway to extend the temporary exclusion of eligibility for MAID MD-SUMC in case Bill C-62 does not receive Royal Assent before the sunset clause comes into force on 17 March 2024. In that case, clause 3 would amend the Criminal Code directly so as to reintroduce the provision prohibiting MAID MD-SUMC, along with a new sunset clause that would expire on 17 March 2027.
